3 Questions.....

What is.....

..... OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY?

Royal College of Occupational Therapists

“Occupational therapy provides practical support to empower people to facilitate recovery and overcome barriers preventing them from doing the activities (or occupations) that matter to them. This support increases people's independence and satisfaction in all aspects of life” (RCOT 2019)

World Federation of Occupational Therapists

“Why we’re here

Making lives fit for living.

To enable engaged, meaningful lives,
for everyone”

What do we mean by 'occupation'?

"Occupation" as a term refers to practical and purposeful activities that allow people to live independently and have a sense of identity. This could be essential day-to-day tasks such as self-care, work or leisure." (RCOT 2019)

But what do Occupational Therapists actually do?

“Occupational therapists play a critical role in helping people of all ages overcome the effects of disability caused by illness, ageing or accident so that they can carry out everyday tasks or occupations.” (RCOT 2019)

- Occupational therapists consider the person (physical and psychological needs), the environment and the occupation they need or want to carry out.
- They assess to see why someone may be experiencing challenges with the occupations they need or want to do and also assess the person's strengths.
- They then work with the person and anyone important to them to enable them to achieve their potential.
